NAVAL HISTORY AND HERITAGE COMMAND

Available in June 2020!

This review of U.S. Navy aircraft carrier requirements during four presidential administrations provides a manageable way to look at recent Navy policy. The concise study provides trenchant insights into how shifts in national policy affected the Navy. In effect, the number of aircraft carriers during a given period is the primary determinant of the service's overall size and underpins U.S. naval strategy in a shifting spectrum of missions and in potential and real conflicts.

offers a variety of scholarly publishing opportunities for faculty, staff, and graduate-level students. In addition to a full catalog of monographs covering Marine Corps history and national security/international relations topics, MCUP also publishes three journals annually.

Expeditions with MCUP

Expeditions with MCUP, an online academic journal, offers authors a forum for the debate of trending domestic and international topics. Articles cover topics ranging from national security, international relations, political science, and geopolitics as they apply to and impact the Department of Defense, Department of the Navy, and Marine Corps.

Marine Corps History

MCH is published twice a year on topics within the long history of the Corps: Civil War, Spanish-American War, Banana Wars, WWI, WWII, Korea, Cold War, Vietnam, Iraq, Afghanistan, and women and minorities in the military. Articles must focus on some aspect of the Corps, either directly or indirectly, including foreign marines and joint operations.

MCU Journal

MCUJ focuses on topics of concern to the Corps and the DOD, including international relations, political science, security studies, and political economics. Articles may discuss topics from a historical, contemporary, or forward-looking perspective. The Spring 2020 journal focuses on innovation and future warfare. Article submissions due by December 2019.

Article submissions for all three journals should be between 4,000 and 10,000 words, footnoted, and formatted according to the Chicago Manual of Style (17th edition). For more information about submission guidelines or to submit an article idea, please visit our website or contact MCU_Press@usmcu.edu.

NSA'S CENTER FOR CRYPTOLOGIC HISTORY

The Center's 2019 book Ann's War: One Woman's Journey to the Codebreaking Victory over Japan offers a perceptive overview of Ann Caracristi, the National Security Agency's first woman deputy director. Caracristi was among the thousands of "code girls" who contributed to America's World War II efforts to break German and Japanese codes.

This book by Dr. David Sherman recounts Caracristi's formative years and her work at Arlington Hall Station, with emphasis on her team's work to break Japan's Water Transport Code. 2019; 54 pp.

Read Ann's War online at www.nsa.gov (under About Us, click Cryptologic Heritage > Historical Figures and Publications > Publications > Personalities) or email history@nsa.gov for a free copy.

Now a powerful digital resource offers the vast record of U.S. federal history captured in the Territorial Papers. For the first time scholars can search across the entire corpus of these essential documents, which hold the official history of most American states. High-resolution images of the original sources ensure researchers don't miss a single detail.
